Charlotte Booker, President, Georgia Association of Educators

Charlotte Booker is the current President of the Georgia Association of (GAE), a state affiliate of the National Education Association. Before taking the helm as the leader of Georgia's pre-eminent statewide teaching organization, she taught elementary school and was a technology specialist in both Virginia and Georgia public schools. In Georgia specifically, she has worked for the Atlanta City schools, and Fulton, Clayton and Rockdale counties' schools. She is certified to teach grades Pre-K through 5th.

Ever since she can remember, Booker has had a strong passion for educating our youth and is a firm believer that education is the key to success for all our children. Her experience in the classroom has taught her that educators need to stand up for what they believe is best for their students, their classrooms and schools, and the teaching profession overall. She is no stranger to leadership roles within the association serving first as Secretary-Treasurer from 2012-2014, then as Vice President from 2014-2018, and then being elected to the office of president in April 2018. She was sworn in to begin her two-year term on July 5, 2018.

Booker holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Clarke Atlanta University in Early Childhood Education and a Master of Education degree in Educational Technology from Troy State University. She is also a proud veteran of the United States Navy where she served as an Electronic Technician stationed in Norfolk, Virginia.

Booker was born in Conyers, Georgia and still resides there. She is a proud mother of two U.S. Navy active duty members, both working in the nuclear power field, who are currently stationed in Hawaii and Virginia. She is member of Rock Temple African American Episcopal Church in Conyers and is a member of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Incorporated. In her spare time, she's an avid reader, traveler, and likes to cook.
